Let’s close the rural degree divide
The growing college degree divide

A student’s future should be determined solely by their aspirations, motivation and effort, not by their zip code

Yet, nationwide, there’s a widening gap between the aspirations of students from underrepresented communities who want to earn a college degree and the systemic, unfair barriers they face in achieving it. Data shows that the further students live from urban centers, the less likely they are to have access to the resources they need to support their college aspirations.

While there is no single cause, contributors to this “degree divide” include inequitable academic prep, fragmented resources, complex college systems, and resource-constrained staff. Early evidence indicates that the COVID-19 pandemic has only widened these barriers, putting the diversity of our future workforce and equitable economic mobility at risk.

1 Pew Research Center analysis of 1996 and 2016 National Postsecondary Student Aid Study (NPSAAS), National Center for Education Statistics, “A Rising Share of Undergraduates Are From Poor Families, Especially at Less Selective Colleges.”
THOSE WITH A COLLEGE DEGREE ARE:

3.5x less likely to live in poverty

24% more likely to be employed

And earn upward of $1.2M more in their lifetime

Strong communities start with college equity

When students from underinvested communities earn a bachelor’s degree, especially those who are the first in their family to attend college, they are 24% more likely to be employed and 3.5 times less likely to live in poverty when compared with peers who don’t attend college. Evidence shows that college graduates earn upward of $1.2 million more in their lifetime, and have higher rates of civic engagement than their high school graduate peers.

Evidence also shows that removing barriers to college access and success can create a more diverse and richer educational experience on college campuses. Removing these barriers also contributes to building a more diverse workforce, a critical factor in fueling greater innovation, stronger communities and more equitable economic mobility.

We empower the college dream

Connecting students outside urban centers to proven college access and success programming

At College Possible Oregon, we’re working to close the college degree divide. Since 2012, our college access and success programs have helped put more than 2,400* students throughout Oregon on the path to a college degree. In 2015, we expanded our pioneering near-peer coaching model to students in rural communities and/or outside urban centers of Oregon via our hybrid, tech-connected Navigate partnerships.

As a Navigate partner, your school can match eligible students with a trained, tech-connected near-peer coach and an intensive curriculum designed to help students overcome the most common barriers to getting into college and completing their degree — all at no cost to students or their families.

WHAT SETS US APART:

Near-Peer Coaches
Students benefit from the relatability, recent experience and trusted relationship with our near-peer coaches who offer an intensive curriculum of personalized interventions.

Hybrid, Tech-Connected Support
Coaches use the latest in technology to deliver students an intensive curriculum of personalized, in-person and tech-connected support aligned to key milestones along the college journey.

6+ Years of Support
Support to Navigate students starts in their junior year of high school, follows them to their college of choice and continues through degree completion.

Support for Unenrolled Students
Students who unenroll or stop out of college continue to receive coaching support to help them get back on track toward their college degree goal.

Free to Students
Thanks to the generous support of our funders and partners, our college access and success programs are offered at no cost to students or their families.

A PROUD AMERICORPS PROGRAM

AmeriCorps is a federal agency that brings people together to tackle the country’s most pressing challenges through national service. Our AmeriCorps members commit to a year of service as College Possible coaches in communities throughout the country. Many represent the identities of the students they serve, and each brings a commitment to social justice and closing the college equity divide.
Over 20 years of national, evidence-based results

As one of the largest college access and success organizations in the country, our evidence-based programs have earned national credibility. Compared with their peers from similar backgrounds, College Possible students are 30% more likely to enroll in college the year after high school graduation, and three times more likely to earn a bachelor’s degree after graduating from high school.1

30% more likely to enroll in college the year after high school graduation

3x more likely to earn a bachelor’s degree after graduating high school

“Where do you start when planning one of the biggest decisions in your life? College is a huge and scary investment. I knew my parents wanted me to go because they had faith that I could be successful in school. However, I also knew it was up to me to take the steps necessary to get there.

I am a first-generation student. My parents are capable, smart individuals but I knew they wouldn’t be able to help me navigate the process, so I was ready to welcome any help. Fortunately, that’s exactly what I received from College Possible.”
